

Fair tonight. Showers and colder Wednesday.

The Washington Times

LAST EDITION

NUMBER 4716.

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY EVENING, MAY 14, 1907.

PRICE ONE CENT.

HOWARD GOULD TO BE SUED BY ACTRESS WIFE

MRS. HOWARD GOULD, Formerly Katherine Clemmons, Who Has Been Living Apart From Her Husband.

QUAKE ADDS TO MT. ETNA'S TERRORS NOW

Greatest Eruption Fared in History of Volcano.

ROME, May 14.—Earthquake shock felt near Mt. Etna have added to the panic among the people living near the volcano, caused by the eruption, which has continued for several days. Dispatches received today from Catania, Sicily, say that since midnight yesterday continued shocks have been felt. There is the greatest fear that one of the worst eruptions in the history of the volcano is about to occur.

GRANTS MORE TIME IN MRS. EDDY CASE

CONCORD, N. H., May 14.—A motion for fifteen days' additional time in which to file supplemental pleadings was granted counsel for the plaintiffs in the suit brought by the "Friends of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy for an accounting of the property of the Christian Science leader, in the Merrimack county superior court.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

The Western disturbance this morning extends in a line almost due north and south from the Mississippi valley northward to Lake Superior, and over this district showers were general, with rain and snow on the northwest and western sides into the slope States and the Rocky mountain region. In the Eastern States the weather was fair, and temperatures have risen over the southeastern half of the country, and are about normal or slightly above. They have fallen decidedly in the Northwest and West, where they are from ten to twenty-two degrees below the seasonal average, with freezing temperatures as far as southwestern Nebraska.

It will be cooler generally on Wednesday, except in the South Atlantic States, and also cooler tonight in the lower Lake region, the Ohio, and lower Mississippi valleys.

Storm warnings are displayed on the lower Lakes.

Steamers departing today for European ports will have fresh west to north-west winds and partly cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

SUN TABLE.

Sun sets today..... 7:04

Sun rises tomorrow..... 4:47

TIDE TABLE.

High water today..... 9:23 a. m.

Low water today..... 4:08 p. m.

High water tomorrow..... 10:00 a. m.

Low water tomorrow..... 4:38 a. m., 4:49 p. m.

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va., May 14.—Potomac, muddy; Shenandoah, clear.

Boards, wide, bright, $2.00 per 100 ft.

COREY SAILS, WISHING ALL "GOOD LUCK"

His Son Is Said to Have Refused to Live With Father.

NEW YORK, May 14.—William E. Corey, head of the Steel trust, and his bride, formerly Mabelle Gilman, the actress, are today upon the high seas, bound for France, where they will spend their honeymoon in the chateau, on the outskirts of Paris, which Corey presented to his second love. Following the ceremony performed in the royal suite of the Hotel Gotham shortly after midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Corey were hurried away to the pier of the Kaiser Wilhelm, which sailed shortly after 7 o'clock today. At the pier Corey flew into a rage with the newspaper men. His wife's quiet words recalled him, however, and he said good-by with a final benediction: "I wish you and all the people of New York the best of good luck."

Rages at Photographers.

Two photographers, who were prepared to take a snapshot of the Coreys as they left their electric carriage, aroused the bridegroom's ire. He turned fiercely on them, threatening to break the cameras if they were used. Mrs. Corey stopped the explosion and the couple entered the pier.

At the gang plank a crowd of reporters was waiting. Corey turned on the group, saying: "Well, gentlemen, what is it? What new horror do you spring upon me? It is useless to ask me to make any statement. I have nothing to say. You gentlemen should be ashamed to ask me to speak after all the unkind things that have been printed about me."

Bride Calms Him.

Again, by a touch on his arm, the bride recalled Corey to good humor. Turning to the news gatherers, he said, with a smile: "While we appreciate the fond solicitude of you boys, we have nothing to say."

"Positively nothing," chimed in the bride. Then they ascended the gang plank. Corey stopped long enough to wish everyone "good luck," and then disappeared.

The wedding was elaborate in every way, although attended only by the closest relatives and intimate friends. A wedding dinner preceded the ceremony. This delayed the marriage until after midnight. But, to cast a gloom over Corey's complete happiness, it is said, he received a telegram last night from his son, a nineteen-year-old boy, whom he loves next to his new wife, declining to desert his mother and become the first Corey to live with his father and Mrs. Corey No. 2.

Congregationalist Officiated.

The Rev. J. L. Clarke, pastor of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church, of Brooklyn, the minister secured by Corey after his vain hunt for an Episcopal minister to marry him, performed the ceremony. It was noticeable that there was no music for the occasion.

Miss Frances Erskine Shaw, who accompanied Miss Gilman from Europe, was her only attendant at the wedding. Mr. Corey stood alone. Standing under a floral illuminated wedding veil, in a room lavishly decorated with smilax, fern, white carnations, and American Beauty roses, Corey and the former actress exchanged vows. Only a brief time was allowed for congratulations before Mrs. Corey went to her room to dress for her trip to the steamer.

Previous to the hour of the dinner both Corey and Mrs. Gilman had kept to themselves. None of the guests saw them until they met the couple in the reception room. In the strangely inverted order of the wedding the health of the bride and bridegroom was drunk before they had been married.

Fifty minutes after they had been pronounced man and wife Mr. and Mrs. Corey left the hotel to start for the steamer.

The bride wore a traveling dress of white with a small black stripe, and a large white picture hat. Mr. Corey wore a gray overcoat and shirt and carried a large yellow cane. The bride arrived at the North German Lloyd steamship pier at 3:20 a. m.

SHIPS DISPERSE, AMERICAN FLEET LEAVES HAMPTON

Following the naval display at Hampton Roads yesterday the Atlantic fleet has broken up and will not be reassembled again until June 3, when the ships will take up their positions off Old Point Comfort to welcome the arrival of the President on the Mayflower on the morning of June 10, when he will be the orator of the day at the celebration of Georgia Day at the Jamestown Exposition.

The Maine was the first to raise anchor, having cleared the Capes last night, according to advices received from the fleet at the Navy Department today. The Connecticut, with the commander-in-chief aboard, and the Louisiana and Mississippi followed. The other ships, except the Alabama, Illinois, Kentucky, and Kearsarge, will follow within the next few days. Admiral Davis will remain at Hampton Roads to entertain the Brazilian and Chilean squadrons.

Nearly all the battleships that are leaving Hampton Roads at this time will go to New York to go into dock for repairs and to give the men shore liberty. The cruisers and torpedo boats will be sent to the yards at Norfolk and League Island. It is hoped by officials of the Navy Department to have most of them out in time to participate in the exercises in Hampton Roads June 10. That will be the last big function at which the navy will take important part during the exposition so far as arranged as present.

Libbey & Co., 6th st. and New York ave.

Boards, wide, all heart, $2.00 per 100 ft.

Lawyer Grills Veniremen, Aiming for Unbiased Jury In Trial of W. D. Haywood

THE THREE MINER DEFENDANTS AND THEIR JUDGE

Charles H. Moyer and Wife Are on His Right. George Pettibone and Wife Are on His Left.

POOR PROGRESS CHOOSING PEERS TO TRY ACCUSED

Each Talesman Closely Questioned Regarding His Politics.

BOISE, Idaho, May 14.—With all of the seats in the jury box occupied, although but four members had been passed for cause by both sides and all are still subject to peremptory challenges, the third day of the trial of William D. Haywood for the murder of Frank Steenberg began. The prospects are good for the selection of at least four jurors before court finally adjourns today.

Attorney Richardson is determined to secure an unbiased jury, and his questioning at times seems to border closely on the insulting. This becomes more and more evident as he grills the veniremen suspected of being rabid partisans of Governor Gooding, who is the real head and front of the prosecution.

Questioned on Politics.

"What are your politics?" fairly snarls Richardson as he focuses his attention on a talesman. "Republican, eh? Well, do you think you could give as fair a trial to a Democrat as you could a Republican accused of murder?"

"You could?" Suppose he was a Socialist. Suppose, now, and his heavy and somewhat repulsive voice dies down to a semi-confident tone, "Just suppose that it should be determined, should, in fact, come out in evidence that this defendant (here his voice gains added force until it is raised almost to a shouting pitch) was and is a Socialist, could you give him fair treatment and render a verdict according to the evidence and the law laid down?"

All Republicans So Far.

A peculiar fact which has caused considerable comment is that so far each talesman questioned said he was a Republican. This has given rise to the allegation that discrimination has been shown in summoning veniremen, but when questioned on the subject today, Sheriff "Shad" Hodgins resented the implication.

"I took my men off the voters' list," he declared, "and I have had practically no information and absolutely no personal knowledge of their politics. If you think any of these men has been approached in this case go ask them, and if they don't knock you down I'll — and here 'Shad' sighed as he realized there was no phrase in the English language expressive enough to make his meaning clear.

One Juror Approached.

When the court proceedings were resumed today Attorney Richardson took up the examination of Juror No. 5, J. L. Waggoner. It developed early that Waggoner had been approached by a man who tried to tell him about the merits of the case. The judge was informed. The man was placed under arrest and bound over by a magistrate to the district court.

Richardson's examination of this talesman was along lines already indicated. It took two and a half hours Monday afternoon to dispose of one-fourth of the special panel of 100. All of the five examined by Judge Wood had valid excuses.

Crop Short 100,000,000 Bushels.

Speculative factors in the market declare that the price has been made by a prospective shortage of at least 100,000,000 bushels in the crop for America alone, due to bad weather and crop conditions. Experts estimate the European shortage at from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels.

On the other hand those who have been most closely in touch with the great movement instituted over a year ago to control the output of the wheat

(Continued on Second Page.)

Lumber trust broken—Libbey & Co.

Alabama Flooring, mostly edge grain,

Reduced to $2.50 per 100 feet.

HARGIS BADLY SCARED

Noose Tightening About Neck of Accused Feudist.

Strong Testimony Given On Slaying of Cockrill.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 14.—The noose is tightening about the neck of Judge James Hargis, on trial here for the assassination of James Cockrill.

Hargis is badly frightened. The testimony being given here against him is the strongest ever given in any of these noted trials.

T. T. Cope, the lawyer, of Jackson, swears that Hargis told him he had heard Jim Cockrill was coming to Jackson to kill him.

"Cockrill came," Hargis is reported to have said, "but was shot himself soon after he got here."

Many Strong Witnesses.

Judge S. S. Taulbee, C. X. Bowling, Robert Blake, Henry Noble, C. J. Little, Hardin Childers, and Samuel Hays gave strong testimony against Hargis.

Moses Felner, star witness against Judge Alex. and Elbert Hargis, and Eh. Callahan in all the Breathitt county trials, will likely testify. He will go over in detail all the Breathitt murder plots, and tell of midnight meetings in Hargis' store, at which plans were laid for the assassination of Cox, Cockrill, and Marcum.

Protects Brother's Slayer.

Felner fled from Breathitt county to escape murder by Hargis' henchmen, and fears being killed here.

He is closely guarded by Sam Fields, who, although Felner killed his brother, Jesse Fields, is a close friend of Felner. Felner swears he saved Marcum's and Cockrill's lives several times by warning them of assassination plots.

MEXICO INQUIRES INTO HER MINES

The Postmaster General announced today that through the medium of the State Department the Mexican government had consented to make investigations, and to furnish such use of the mails, in concrete cases, evidence as to the value and output of properties in Mexico, claimed to belong to concerns that have been advertising mining and plantation holdings in such a way as to obtain money through the mails under false pretenses.

The Postoffice Department had received numerous complaints as to these operations, but in order to enforce the statute prohibiting such use of the mails, it was necessary to have evidence as to the value and output of such properties, and this the United States Government was unable to obtain.

Postoffice inspectors sent to Mexico reported that they could not get information, on account of a Mexican law imposing a penalty upon anyone making statements derogatory to the property or business of another.

SEEKING HUSBAND, ASKS POLICE AID

Unable to locate her husband, Mrs. Nettie Daniels, of 400 K street southwest, has appealed to the police authorities here and in other cities to find him.

Edward O. Daniels, a house painter, left his wife, it is said, more than two months ago. Since then she has found positions for her three oldest children, one a girl of eighteen, who earns $3 a week in a laundry. Two boys—fifteen and seventeen—are working in a glue factory at wages hardly sufficient to keep themselves. Four other children are too young or ill to work.

Mrs. Daniels heard recently that her husband had gone to Richmond, but the Richmond authorities were unable to find any trace of him.

Mrs. Daniels believes that liquor is responsible for his action in leaving her.

CHINESE TO FINANCE A MEXICAN RAILWAY

MEXICO CITY, May 14.—The Chinese Bank, of Tientsin, is preparing to build an electric street railway system in that city. The promoters of the project are among the wealthiest Chinese of Mexico. The line will be about twelve miles long, and more than $4,000,000 will be spent in building and equipping it. The concession for the project was obtained recently from the government and the work of construction is ready to be pushed forward rapidly.

Libbey & Co., 6th st. and New York ave.